THE COLLECTION CATALOG

ERC20 EDITION

From the editor
Artefact.eth

While I was preparing the first catalog for the Creeps & Weirdos in April 2021, I already knew deep in my heart that I was probably going to make a second one.

The story that hid behind this collection and the Dada.art project was so dense; there was so much information to fetch from the Blockchain and the Internet archives since its creation on October 5, 2017!
Thus, in this version, you will find several improvements, such as a visual of the conversation which each drawing belongs to, the name of the artwork and updated links to HD images when available, etc...

There is also human adventure. One with the artists who welcomed my initiative with great enthusiasm and one with the collectors' community on the discord server who spontaneously offered their help. All have given me great energy to complete this new catalog. You will find the inspiring testimony of Narciso, an early Dada collector who shares his journey with us.

I thank them for their support, and I thank you, dear reader and future collector, for your interest in these authentic drawings that will leave their footprint forever in the history of digital art and NFTs.

I still wish you good reading and I hope you take as much pleasure in consulting this catalogit as I had in making it.

Special Thanks

All the artists who helped me to build this catalog by providing essential information about them and their art. Hands up to Moxarra who created the stunning design used for the cover.

About DADA

The essence of DADA is that it is a conversation. When people draw, they cannot lie. They show who they really are. They take time, imagination and creativity, they share their feelings, and when someone else responds to them with another drawing, the effect is miraculous. Drawing on DADA is like a music jam, with people following the line, melody, tone, color of the first drawing, and spontaneously creating a thing of beauty. People bond. They become friends. They fall in love. They make art together.

Our mission has always been to create a sustainable way for artists to make a living. And by sustainable, we mean to include as many people as possible from all over the world, and create a more equitable and fair system so that more artists can make more art, and more people can have access to and benefit from it.

Creeps & Weirdos was the first collection of tokenized DADA art we ever launched. Back in 2017, there were only a handful of platforms that had begun experimenting with NFT art and we were eager to test this potentially revolutionary technology for artists. Because of our mission to put artists first, our smart contracts were the first ones to include royalties that were executed on-chain.

Since then, we have not stopped experimenting and innovating. The most eye-opening experience for me has been participating in an emerging space. The energy, the ebullience, the cooperation that happens when people are trying to solve new problems together and push the boundaries of what is possible is challenging, yet exhilarating. By now, DADA has been around the block, and then some. We were there before almost every current Ethereum NFT platform and marketplace took their first steps.

The Creeps & Weirdos are not only unique because they are digitally handmade by artists in our drawing platform; they have proved that our system that rewards collaboration works, and they are an important milestone in the history of NFT art.

We could not be prouder of sharing them with the world again today.

A Collector's Story
Narciso.eth

My interest in DADA's art began in January 2018 after reading an article on Cryptokitties. I thought the concept of being able to buy art that didn't take up physical space, couldn't be destroyed, and generally couldn't be stolen was incredible. I was hooked after buying a few Gen 0 Cryptokitties as well as my first and favorite DADA art piece, the 'Feels Good Creeps' by Moxarra González. Shortly after buying my first few DADA pieces, I went to the first Rare Art Festival which took place in New York City and learned about the other NFT projects at the time like Cryptopunks, Rare Pepes, and Spells of Genesis. I continued to build my NFT collection over the next couple years, accumulating 20 pieces from the Creeps & Weirdos collection, 27 pieces from the Animalia collection, and a number of pieces from a now defunct platform called Rare Art Labs. Back then, the term 'NFT' existed, but I think most people, myself included, referred to NFTs as 'digital art' or 'cryptoart' at the time.

In my opinion, the DADA project will go down in history as one of the true pioneers of NFTs. As far as I know, the DADA collections are the first pieces of non-pixelated art on the Ethereum blockchain, and I think the market will eventually realize the historical value of the DADA collections. I was actually extremely surprised to see NFTs blow up in popularity over this past year. My initial estimate back in 2018 was that NFTs would take at least another decade to go mainstream so it was very surprising to see the explosion of interest in NFTs in 2021 and all of the new NFT projects. I'm excited to see what DADA does next with the Invisible Economy, and I'm looking forward to collecting more pieces from all of the talented DADA artists.

Understanding the DADA smart contract and the token provenance

The story of the Creeps and Weirdos Smart Contracts is one of innovation and experimentation, a complicated tale of two contracts that are both individual and forever linked. Released at a time when crypto art was in its infancy and the term 'NFT' was still years from common use, the collection involves an ERC20 token released in 2017 and an ERC721 token released in 2019.

The original ERC20 token (https://etherscan.io/token/0x068696a3cf3c4676b65f1c9975dd094260109d02), was released on 5 October 2017, and was a modified version of the CryptoPunks contract. The collection on this contract consisted of a total of 16,600 pieces encompassing 108 unique artworks made by 30 artists on DADA. It was the first smart contract known to code automated artist royalties directly into the contract with 60% of resale profits going to the collector, 30% to the artist and 10% to the DADA collaborative community. A revolutionary idea for the art world where traditionally artists see little of the millions made from secondary sales of their work.

The second ERC721 token (https://etherscan.io/token/0x34d77a17038491a2a9eaa6e690b7c7cd39fc8392) was released on 12 February 2019 and upgraded the Creeps and Weirdos collection to the new standard of NFT with increased functionality. The supply was halved on this contract to 8,500 and each current owner of an ERC20 token was airdropped an ERC721 version of the same artwork, leaving each collector with both an ERC20 and an ERC721 token. At the conclusion of the airdrop, DADA flipped the switch on the 2017 contract to pause any further actions and leave the 2019 contract as the sole active contract.

The DADA website marketplace was also closed at this time, meaning no more art was to be minted. In March 2021, however, collectors found they were still able to buy some art from the collection through the DADA website by entering through a backdoor. This moment has become affectionately known to the DADA collective as the 2021 'ApeStorm'. Apestormers minted art on the newer ERC721 contract.
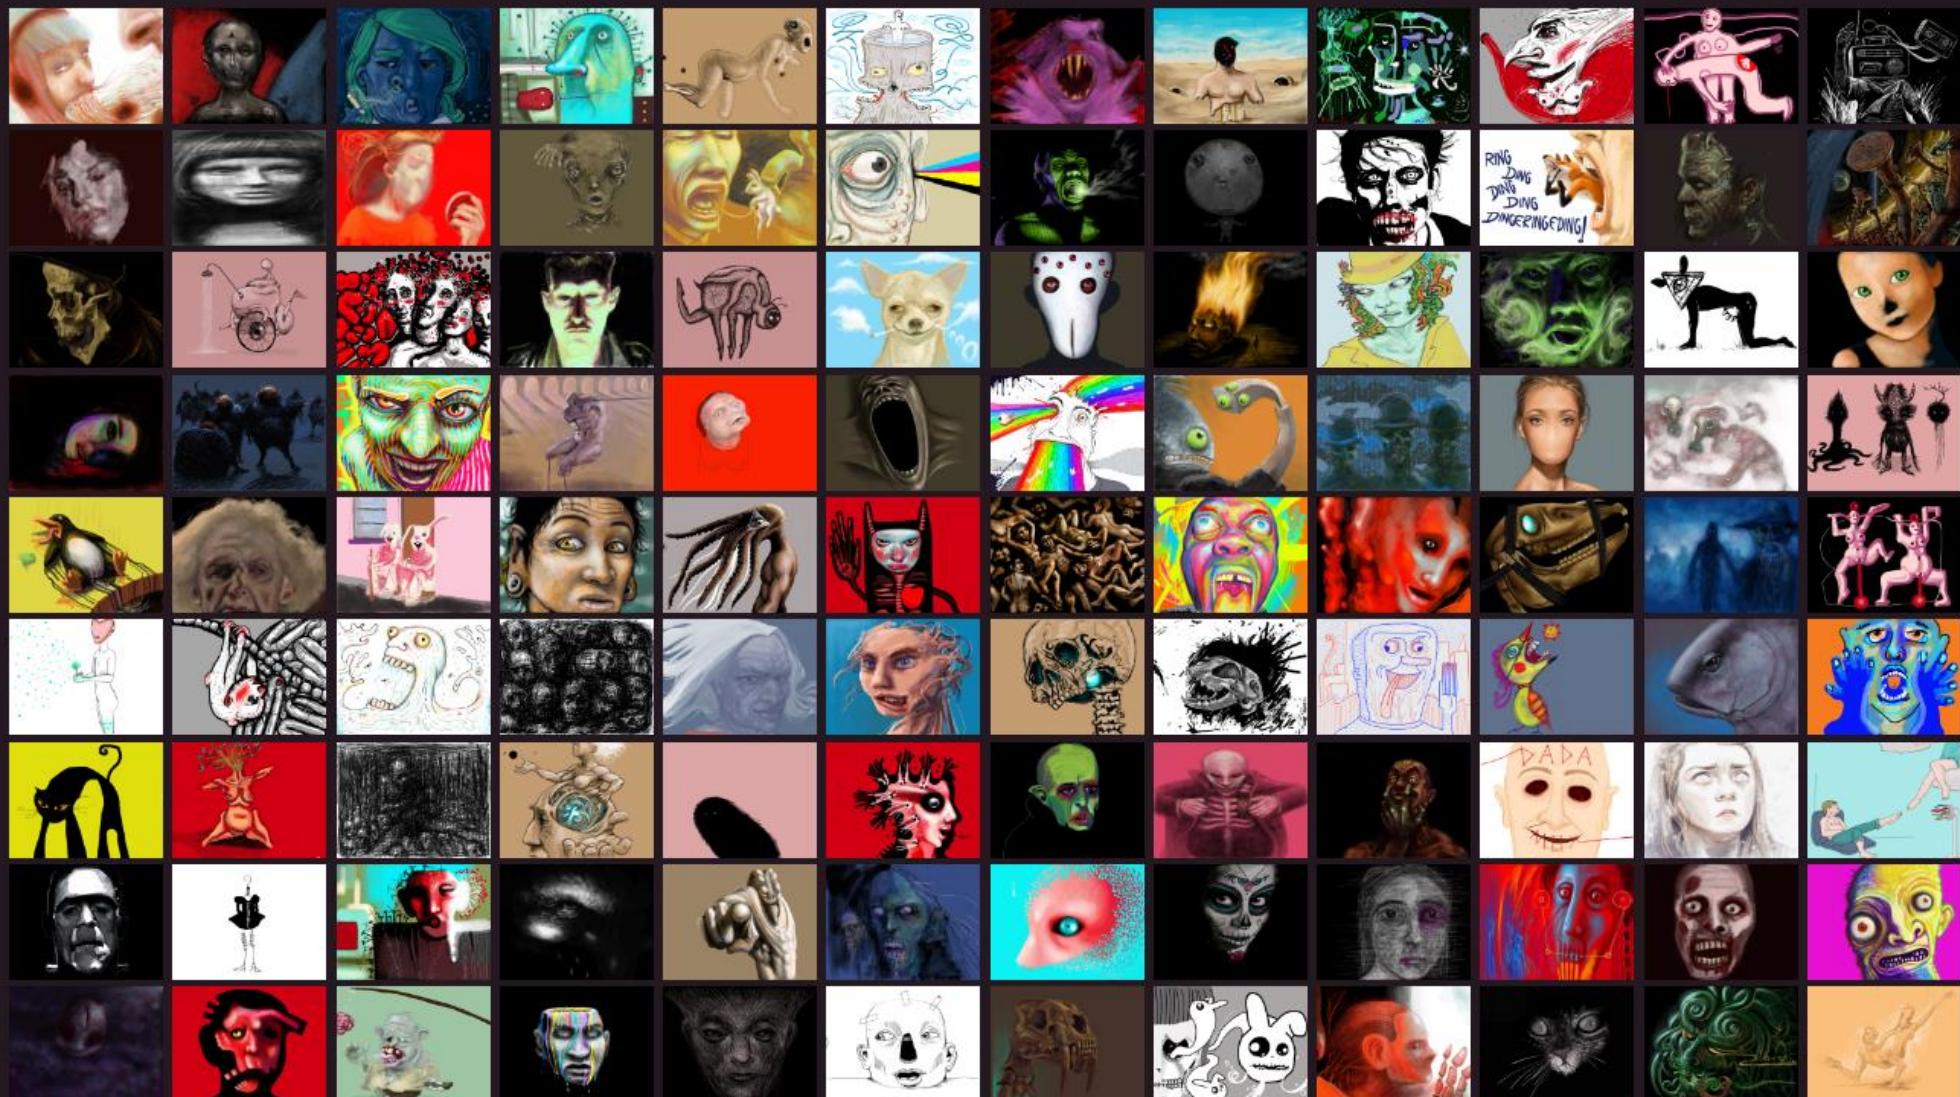

Now, DADA has chosen to open their new marketplace on Palm, selected for its low gas costs, and fast transaction finality. With this release comes a third contract.

Thus, we have three contracts spanning four significant moments in the history of the Creeps and Weirdos: The genesis 2017 release, the 2019 upgrade, the 2021 Apestorm and the coming Palm release. Complex and intertwined but each important as standalone contracts.

I don't have a style, my art is a game, it's fun, it's a search for shapes, for colors to express thoughts and emotions. I like adrenaline, challenge and learning. Perhaps as I don't have a technical background I need to feel free to create..

Being a part of the Creeps & Weirdos makes me think that I feel like a creep or a weirdo myself in many aspects of my life. This is one of those times. Introducing myself and showing the drawings I made in DADA long ago makes me feel vulnerable, a bit ashamed, and it exacerbates my shyness. Of course, these are not the only feelings I have. There are others that allow me to move forward. Among them is the feeling of pride for being part of this magnificent community which is almost like a big family, my admiration for each one of the artists with whom I share drawings and my commitment to them and to myself not to miss this amazing opportunity.

🌍 Spain

I am a multimedia artist and I use many platforms to express myself, from painting, photography, sculpture, and digital art, to video art. Sometimes I work on photographs, sometimes shapes come from inside me freely, with a life of their own. I am often told I am many artists in one. Complexity and diversity live together in me.
As an artist, I have a disquieting need to work. Images invade me and I can't stop until they come alive in my work. I sometimes think that I am constantly channeling because I never stop.

DADA

🌍 United States

DADA was born in 2012. It's a she and a he and a they and an it. It's like a one man band with multiple personality disorder. It's everywhere at the same time. It lives where there's art and good people.

Hernán Cacciatore

🌍 Argentina

Hernán Leonardo Cacciatore was born in Morón, Buenos Aires in 1973, the son of an advertising illustrator and an assistant nurse. Already as a child he demonstrated strange abilities like speaking and reading backwards and communicating with invisible beings, not always playfully. He was always fascinated by magic and the occult, which he studied in secret. He studied art with his cousin, artist Abel Acevedo. He was a successful championship bodybuilder over a decade. He currently is a Reverend in an international druidic brotherhood.

Hello! I am María García. I was born in Cumaná, Sucre State, Venezuela. I am a self-taught artist. Since I was a little girl, I used to design dresses for dolls I drew. I discovered DADA as a Facebook app, as a game. What attracted me the most was that we are like a family that communicates through our drawings.

Otro Captore (Susana Riveros)
🌎 Chile

Otro Captore was born in Pueblo sin Ley (Lawless Town), located in the Hondonada Verde region of Chile. She declares herself against the persistent, obscene and perverse looting that neoliberal capitalism carries out in Latin America and in the world, through necropolitical strategies, violent pacification, and limitless extraction. She has worked on issues concerning the body, especially skinning, which expresses the absence or removal of skin, a porous boundary pierced between the outside and the inside, the effect of violence and the penetrability of non-productive bodies, a usual place of discomfort in contemporary aesthetics.

Serste (Serena Stelitano)

🌍 Italy

Serste AKA Serena Stelitano - In my daily life I like to observe the world, exercise empathy, grow plants and do art. Since childhood curiosity has been my way of life, so after my fine arts degree I began a personal research about human beings and our place in Nature. In 2014 I started making digital art and studying agriculture, and today I'm building a little regenerative farm in Tuscany. I've been a regular on DADA since 2016.

Talita Sotomayor
🌐 Mexico

I am 33 years old, I was born in Venezuela in a small town called MUCUCHIES. My interest in art started as a child, not only paintings, but everything that will represent art for my eyes, I did not have the privilege of studying that career, but ultimately it is exciting, I am a preschool assistant and currently I study psychology.

Vvs (Vanessa Stati)

🌍 Argentina

Life lover, Daydreamer, Restless soul, Natural explorer, Digital dadaist, Crypto artist, simply artist... I make art and art makes me. Art is in turn the way I choose to live and the guide of my journey through this world, my inner compass...do we choose art or it chooses us to raise its own voice? I guess we'll never know.
